Experience

Since joining the loss-accounting profession in 1993 Mr. Rand has participated in the preparation and settlement of increasingly large and complex business interruption claims for corporate clients both domestic and international. His clients represent a large mix of industry segments including hospitality, high-technology, automotive, chemicals and plastics, retail, pulp and paper, other manufacturing, government and not-for-profit, among others. His accounting has also dealt with analyzing business risk exposures typically regarding ratable business interruption values, location BI Values, maximum foreseeable and probable maximum loss computations

Mr. Rand's efforts have resulted in settlements worth in excess of $1 billion, a total representing substantial increases over the original insurance company offers.
